IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our husband and father, Julian Mann, who left us two years ago today. In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true;
Though we do not think of you.
Dear, you are not forgotten
Tho on earth you are no more
Still in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
Someday we hope to meet you
Some day we know not when
To clasp your hand in a better land
Never to part again.
Sadly missed by his wife, Bernice, children, and mother.

Woodrow Williams was and is the only person from Appomattox County to become a Big League Baseball Player. He started off with the famed Cradock - Terry Sheerest — as did Specs Garbee and other great players. Woodrow went to play for four years as the regular second baseman of the Cincinnati Reds, a true sportsman and fine Virginia Gentleman. I asked Woodrow, "What was the greatest thrill or the greatest moment you ever had in big league baseball?"

He answered right off. Here is the story. He said that the Reds were playing in the great Polo Grounds in New York, against the Giants. Biggest crowd I ever played before. But I was just "on the bench" and we were kidding around and I was down at the very end of our bench in the dug-out. The score was all tied up and that's the way it went into the last inning. We got lucky and managed to get the bases stacked, when the pitcher's turn at bat came up. Bill McKenzie was our great manager. He signaled down for a pinch hitter. The second string catcher was seated next to me, and I nudged him and told him the manager was calling for him to pinch hit, for he was our regular top pinch hitter. He got up, but the manager waved him back, and pointed to me! I could not believe it, and I was thrilled, but shaking all over. I made it to the plate and, the first pitch was a low curve and I missed it by a foot. They knew they had my weakness and the second pitch was the same, and I missed that one, too . . . hit over it. But they slipped up and let the third wide - breaking curve come up almost shoulder high, and I hit it ball, and it sailed over the center fielder's head for a game - winning triple. We won the game, and I will never forget it."

Mother Brightleaf came home from the delightful Megginson-Spradlin reunion Sunday (American Legion Building) with glowing reports. Gee, what a wonderful singer is Jim Megginson, of Norfolk. He sang a duet with the news editor of this paper, Mrs. Martha Stimpson. Brightleaf admits she joined in "with Vigor" when they got to The Old Rugged Cross and such all-time songs as Home On The Range and Lou Me Call You Sweetheart. "Cousin Willie Beale is 91 years old this month and he was the star guest. He admits that once in all his 91 years, he had a headache and came out to Appomattox to get a pill from a doctor. And hasn't had a headache since and therefore considers the $1.00 well spent!

My stack of notes for this column has hardly been dented, but let us desist and merely announce that the next meeting of the "Darkleaf Readers' Club" will be held next Thursday.

U. S. flag will be flown along with the Confederate flag. The program is slated for Memorial Day next year, and the committee hopes to secure Jefferson Davis IV as the guest speaker.

"The committee hopes to have some local civic club erect a tourist information center, either on the western edge of town or in downtown Appomattox."

Since a majority of the group was in favor of proceeding immediately with long-range projects relative to the Centennial, and the Centennial committee felt that these proposals were beyond its authority, as it will go out of existence on December 1, 1965, the supervisors delegated the Rural Area Development committee to investigate the possibilities of an outdoor pageant and other Centennial activities.

Good Garden Despite Drought

Retired county agent R. B. Hudgins is shown above by his asparagus plants. In a space about five feet by 35 feet Hudgins grew enough asparagus from the last of March to the first of June to fill the freezer and give plenty to neighbors, "It's best to pet two year old roots for a good plant bed," he said. And he credits mulching with his present good growth of corn, tomatoes, beans, and other vegetables during the season's drought.

St. Luke's Conducts Baptism

Baptismal services were carried out at the St. Luke's Baptist Church, August 31 by Pastor, Rev. J. A. Shelton.

Regular preaching services at the St. Luke Baptist Church was well attended Sunday, Sept. 8th. The offering was very good. The message by Rev. Shelton was well accepted by all.

Funeral services for Elaine Elliott was attended by an over flowing crowd Sunday at the St. Luke Baptist Church. Rev. J. A. Shelton was in charge. The Rev. A. T. Brown, Rev. W. Bradley and Rev. Sandifer were guest ministers. Mrs. Elliott was a member of the St. Luke Baptist Church and mother of five small children.

Mrs. Anna C. Hunt was a visitor in the home of Mrs. Mollie Hunter and Mrs. Sadie Johnson recently. Mr. P. W. Williamson has returned to Washington D. C. after spending some time with his grandmother, Mrs. Mollie Hunter.

Mr. and Mrs. William Max and five grandchildren from Baltimore, Maryland, were week end guests in the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Canada, August 30th.

East And West

Mrs. Walter Payne, recently returned from a trip by plane from the East coast to the West coast. Having spent five days with her granddaughter, who lives in Seattle, Wash., and enjoying the beautiful "Lake Washington" which is twenty - three and one-half miles long. Also the Space Needle — and many other places of interest. She moves on through Oregan with its beautiful fir trees — and enters into Northern California, where one of her daughters lives in the city of Redding, Calif. There she enjoys many other places of interest, such as "Old California Court House" with all its rare and treasured antiques — and fishing at the lake was grand.

Visits Los Angeles Many Times

White in Long Beach, Calif. with her oldest daughter, she visits Los Angeles many times.

It was wonderful to visit the Marine Land, the beautiful all glass church, and the lovely flowers which help to decorate.

In San Diego she visited her two daughters and enjoyed what is called or known as "Romonas Marriage Place" a place admired by all for its beauty.

She spent a few days over in "Old Mexico" seeing and admiring the works of their hands. Mexican'si in quaint but lovely pottery. One could ot behold, without being touched by the hard times which they are confronted with, because of poverty. Leaving San Diego she travels in an air-conditioned car which aids in coming through the great desert along Arizona and New Mexico —which lasted about two days.

At last, with six days of hard traveling, stopping at motels and restaurants for rest and food — and getting gas for car — she reaches Detroit, Mich., now with her youngest daughter. The magnificient buildings of Detroit, and the beautiful "Great Lakes" of Michigan, were gorgeous.

For several days she was privileged to go over into Canada and was reminded of "Ole Va." as to climate, tobacco growing, etc. A Canadian dinner went just fine while they watched other places and things of interest.

On Saturday, morning about 5 o'clock she and her daughter started from Detroit to —what she calls — "The Garden Spot" of the world, Pamplin, Va. It was a long day of traveling reaching home by 10:30 that night, her son was there alone but ready to greet them.

Mrs. Payne says "It was great to be able to make such a wonderful trip in eight weeks time but good to be home again with friends and loved ones."

Feed Cost

A shortage of pasture and hay, attributed to the current drought, is causing the cost of roughages to skyrocket, says A. Barry Carr, agricultural economist at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Dairymen and beef cattle producers are wondering if they can afford to pay today's high prices for hay.

Actually, farmers are always faced with the question of how much they can pay for hay. Other roughages and even concentrates can be substituted for part of the hay in a livestock ration. So, a good farm manager always considers substitution in the ration as a means of reducing costs.

To compare prices of various feeds, the feeder must use a yardstick. One is total digestible nutrients (TDN). The cost per hundredweight of TDN is calculated for various feeds. To use this method, the cost per hundred pounds of the feed by the percent TDN in the rations. This gives fair accuracy when comparing two feeds on an energy basis. Using TDN as a measure is not very accurate when feeds being compared vary widely in protein content.

Your Agricultural Extension agent can give you TDN percentages for all common feeds and can help compute the cost per hundredweight on TDN, says Carr.

Another yeardstick for feed value is the protein content. It is used chiefly in comparing protein supplements. This is done by dividing the cost per hundredweight of feed by the percentage protein in the feed. Extension agents can also help compute the cost per pound of protein.

Because feed makes up from 50 to 80 percent of the cost of livestock production, the successful farm manager will keep a close eye on feed costs, says Carr. All feedstuffs are not alike; all feed is not priced according to its true value, and all feedstuffs are not equally good buys, says Carr. "There is probably more opportunity for saving this year by shifting the forage to concentrate ratio of rations than there is in changing brands of feed concentrate—although both are important items to consider. Sit down and figure your feed costs around with an eye toward reducing these costs.
